A STORY WORTH TELLING

Chuck Jennings enlisted in the U.S. Navy in the late 1960s during Vietnam. He traveled to the Mediterranean and Atlantic where he helped in the operating room onboard ship assisting the doctor. He was also on a guided missile cruiser. “My navy experience – I loved what I did.” After serving for three years in the Navy, he went back to school, got married, and started working.

Unfortunately, tough times followed. Chuck couldn’t get a job for a few years and became deathly sick. His wife decided to bring him to VA Butler Healthcare. “I had no place else to go and they took me in.”

Chuck has been coming to VA Butler for his care ever since. “Butler has always been fantastic. They have a very dedicated staff here. It’s been that way for as long as I can remember. It’s an excellent hospital.” Chuck stressed the importance of getting registered for VA care. “You never know what’s in your future, and I think it’s important to come in and register. The system is always here for the Veterans.”

Today Chuck also volunteers at VA Butler three days a week. “You get to interact with the Veterans. They’re some of the greatest people.” He’s been volunteering for about four years, and interviewing Veterans for the Veterans History Project (VHP) for about two years. VHP collects and preserves personal accounts of U.S. Veterans so future generations may better understand the realities of war. “It doesn’t matter what you’ve done. It’s a story. And it’s worth telling,” Chuck said.

VA Butler has entered into a partnership with the Library of Congress and actively submits interviews and collected materials to VHP. For details about VHP contact Chuck Jennings at 724.287.3132. You never know what’s in your future, and I think it’s important to come in [to the VA] and register.” Chuck Jennings

Post Deployment Health Reassessment

On April 17, VA Butler Healthcare is partnering with the Department of Defense (DOD) to host a Post Deployment Health Reassessment (PDHRA). The PDHRA will include approximately 125 soldiers serving in the Army National Guard. Recently it has proved very beneficial for VA facilities to host this event because it offers soldiers the opportunity to become comfortable and familiar with the VA facility, receive information about VA benefits and services, and guarantee enrollment. Transitioning home can be difficult, but we’re here to help!

Additional information for returning service members can be found at www.oefof.va.gov or www.butler.va.gov/freedom.asp. You can also call VA Butler Healthcare’s OEF/OIF Program Coordinator at 800.362.8262, ext. 2493.
